OLD BIG SCHOOL TONBRIDGE

TONBRIDGE SCHOOL

Tonbridge School was founded in 1553 by Sir Andrew Judde, under Letters Patent of King Edward VI. Tonbridge remains on the same site as it started on in 1553, looked after by the same Skinners' Company and remains true to its original aim of a well-grounded academic education.

OLD BIG SCHOOL GALLERY

The Old Big School Gallery which features our Landmark Dyrham wide board floor has been designed to bring contemporary art to the heart of the school. It provides a space for a varied exhibition programme which attracts an audience from within as well as beyond the school community.

At the heart of the school, this venue formed part of the original Victorian school building. Having recently been refurbished Old Big School Gallery has been transformed into a multi-functional space. The heritage and character of the space is complemented by its beautiful oak floor.

FLOOR OF DISTINCTION

With our Landmark range we plane rather than sand the plank surface. This opens the oak grain. The application of smoking and coloured oils further accentuates the visual appeal. A classic mid-tone floor of distinction, selected by Tonbridge School for the renovation of the Old Big School exhibition and event space.

ARCHITECT COMMENT

"The school hall integrates the best of old and new; a key element of the transformation is the beautiful and practical new floor."
